

Dear Ms. Dahl,

In the last two meetings I have had with Michel, he has been very withdrawn. Although Michel is usually a quiet little guy, he recent behaviour has been troubling. I have been making an extra effort to make Michel feel comfortable in our conversations, but these extra efforts have had little affect on his recent behaviour. Would you be willing to come and meet with me? Perhaps together we can come to a solution so that Michel feels free to participate and interact with others to his full potential. He is a very bright student little boy and I understand the events of the last year have must be troubling for him. I will try to make all the supports available to Michel.

Sincerely,

Miss. Greenwood,
